

Columbus Division of Police 3rd Annual Domestic Violence Conference

Join law enforcement, advocates, victims, and allies as we come together to discuss the realities of domestic violence in our communities and how we can better help those in need.

The Columbus Division of Police will be hosting our 3rd Annual Domestic Violence Conference on Wednesday, October 24, 2018.

The conference theme is Trauma Informed Response. Speakers will discuss the physiological effects of trauma and how first responders and advocates respond to victims who have experience trauma. Presenters will also provide the best way for responders to care for themselves. Attendees will learn how trauma affects the brain and the ability to recall information as well as how to recognize vicarious trauma.

We also invite you to join us for the last hour to learn how to best defend yourself in an attack. Attendance for this hour is optional and attendees will learn self-defense tactics on how to get out of choke holds and finding environment weapons to help you in your defense. Tennis shoes or flat soled shoes are required for this portion of the conference.

There is no fee to attend, but registration is required. Deadline for registration is October 15, 2018. Please contact us at RegionalTraining@columbuspolice.org, for more details. Registration form is attached.
