Daizhon Cox, a 20-year-old native of Columbus, Ohio, attended Columbus South High School before pursuing a dual bachelor's degree in Political Science and Public Policy at The Ohio State University. He is a member of the Young Scholars Program and holds a strong passion for working within the judicial system and public service.

Dedicated to uplift people from all walks of life and striving to create a more equitable community, community service has always been a priority for Daizhon. He organizes community gatherings to combat hunger, youth violence, and ensure essential resources are available to all. Possessing traits such as self-confidence, determination, and strong leadership, Daizhon has grown into a role model for many. In his current roles, Daizhon serves as a Staffer for State Representative Latayna Humphrey, an Administrative Intern for the Franklin County Board of Commissioners, a panel member for the Police Chief Advisory Panel (CAP), and A nationals coach for the Prophecy Volleyball Club (15s). He has previously worked as a levy board member for Columbus City Schools which recently passed with community support and interned at the Franklin Common Pleas Court with Judge Jaiza Page.

Motivated by personal experiences, Daizhon continues to focus on preparing himself for the future while actively making a difference in the lives of others. His commitment to serving the community and pursuing his dreams set him apart as a dedicated and inspirational individual.
